

Six of Spades

The Clientele

When the fog comes rolling through the avenues something leaves my mind gifted in November underneath the elms in all the dying lines

The mirage and the echo of the life we live gently leaving me
break the fever, square the lines, strange geometry