One Kiss Led To Another

The Coasters

My girlfriend was
Babysitting down the street
So I bought some soda pop
And sandwich meat

She laid it on the table And I took a seat But I never got the Chance to drink or eat

Cause one kiss led to another
And another and another
One kiss led to another
And another and another

The lights were low
When she turned on the radio
I could hear the music
Playing soft and low

I said, we better dance Before I flip my lid We both got up to dance But we never did

I thought the night was young Until I saw the clock
The clock was striking midnight It was quite a shock

I started for the door But she grabbed my sleeve She put her arms around me Man, I couldn't leave

One kiss led to another And another
