

Still Loving After You

The Common Linnets

Half a world away, and a thousand miles behind
I am still loving after you.
In the darkness of my days,
In the silence of my mind.
I am still loving after you

And your beautiful dreams are illusions
and the song that you sing is not true
For all the tears I have cried, and the times that you have lied
I am still loving after you.

A stranger to these streets a ghost behind these walls and regrets I have more than a few And the heart thats hurting hollow broken by the fall
I am still loving after you

And your beautiful dreams are illusions
and the song that you sing is not true
For all the tears I have cried
and the times that you have lied.
I am still loving after you

I thought one day I might be in love deserving of your love I guess I must not know when to give up cause I'm not giving up ooh, ooh, ooh

And your beautiful dreams are illusions
and the song that you sing is not true
For all the tears I have cried
and the times that you have lied
I am still loving after you

For all the tears I have cried
and the times that you have lied
I am still loving after you cause I am still loving after you