

No One's Gonna Need You More

The Dangerous Summer

I told you, "Life's not fair"
At least we know why it's not an easy air to find
I watched you sink right in a bottle of wine
It must've seemed like I could die
And I was pining back
Turned out all the lights and I could barely stand
Coloring the lines in with my proper hand
Lightly pushed away
And I'll hold that waiting hand for you and drown all the words out

I couldn't make it past those eyes
I think I feel like the wind
Sometimes, I wish we'd try to begin
No one's gonna need you more
No one's gonna need you more

I've got mine
Moving 'cross the country I lost track of time
Trying to make a name for myself
Cause every lonely heart can use an honest song they can sing along to You're the home I've been dying to make
And the gold that God didn't take
I'll hold that waiting hand for you and drown all the words out

I couldn't make it past those eyes
I think I feel like the wind
Sometimes, I wish we'd try to begin
No one's gonna need you more
No one's gonna need you...

Fine, I tried, but falling back to sin
Those nights you were keeping me in skin
No one's gonna need you more
No one's gonna need you more

I hope you listen
I need forgiveness
We both can live with at all
And I know, either way I will reach you
Either way I was wrong
If not for this end
I'll still be wishing I was right there with you and all
Either way I am see through
Either way I'm not strong
I was staring out to things I don't want to face
I need back inside your veins
I'm dying out now

I couldn't make it past those eyes
I think I feel like the wind
Sometimes, I wish we'd try to begin
No one's gonna need you more
No one's gonna need you...

Fine, I tried, but falling back to sin
Those nights you were keeping me in skin
No one's gonna need you more

No one's gonna need you more
