The Dangerous Summer

Well I lost the title I'm gonna float away Sad to think I'll always understand why you make friends with enemies You swore you won the lottery I really hope it pays Everything you wanted with your mother Buy that place you always said you would

Through the rain In the morning I see May The season's starting over I don't mind waking up alone As longs as you're okay You're okay

Siren

I really lost a lot of things I can barely speak and I'm hardly sober take good memories and wipe that slate clean I was trying to get it out Some how, right now I'm still standing here

Through the rain In the morning I see May The season's starting over I don't mind waking up alone As longs as you still feed that dream Of moving out to Angel City No one's stopping you Nothing's holding you back Honestly, cause I still care

Are you lying on your back? Are you lying? Why are you settling again? Cause I'm not silenced Not with the way we cut clean We both said a lot and even though we may not speak You are the song I wrote that I will always love and I will always know And I'll never take our time foregranted Honestly so And even when we are grown take everything we own try to take all the pictures in your memories so I lost you

Through the rain In the morning I see May The season's starting over I don't mind waking up alone As longs as you still feed that dream Of moving out to Angel City No one's stopping you Nothing's holding you back Honestly, Cause I still care
