Writing On A Wall

The Dear Hunter

Come away young man where the ground is red and you need a mask to breathe. Oh its been so hard, but your luck could change if you'd just r oll up your sleeves. We had tried our best to warn before but it didn't get you far. Now we're here again with a wish to mend your agonizing scar. Open eyes young man vigilantly hands and a heart prepared for p ain. You will lose much more in this vicious war, past and present stay the same. But the time to come can be altered some if you listen to our s ong... do we sing in vain?

Does the fact remain "there is nothing can't be done?"
