

Homecoming

The Duke Spirit

All the day could offer me
Was the sense that you forgotten to me
I thought someday I'd melt in front of you
As the light of your homecoming car spread across the room

And my imagination it was on fire
A heavy silence where they told me your eyes
On my imagination in my desire
Unfortunately only you will decide

I stand and fold in curtains squares
All of the sheets and thoughts that held us then Locked in the piece of knowing all ashamed caught in sleeve a conceive of your freeing kiss

And my imagination it was on fire
A heavy silence where they told me your eyes
On my imagination in my desire
Unfortunately only you will decide and I will always upon the way I wanted you

I will always think upon the way that I wanted you
I will always think upon the way that I wanted you
I will always think upon the way that I wanted you
I will always think upon the way that I wanted you
I will always think upon the way that I wanted you
I will always think about the way I wanted you
I will always think upon the way that I wanted you
I will always think upon the way that I wanted you
