The Light

The Duskfall

One man in his darkness, lying in his tomb Waiting for the silence to greet his final moon Shadows start to gather, embracing his release A journey to the darkside, a forever rest in peace

There will be light if you believe Just let your memories flow free

Show me light where only shadows breed Embrace my soul and set me free Show me light where only shadows breed Embrace my soul and set me free

Honoured in remembrance, locked in precious mind Mourned among the living - a hurt that never dies Kept alive through heartbeats, and within bloodline Failed to be forgiven, erased by human kind

There will be light if you believe Just let your memories flow free

Show me light where only shadows breed Embrace my soul and set me free Show me light where only shadows breed Embrace my soul and set me free

Show me light where only shadows breed Embrace my soul and set me free Show me light where only shadows breed Embrace my soul and set me free