If the Devil is my son Then my daughter, she is dead She held your hand You took her breath You drowned her in the hell That you've made And will it rip through my hands And will my blood ever land The grounds as broke as I am As broken as I am And I know that she was never real I don't want a son that I hate I would die just to know I could keep my daughter safe But you think you're alone It was never your place to be here You don't need anyone Because I don't need it You've made me sick Made me bleed Please tell me you feel it.
