

The Facts of Life

The Everly Brothers

Just close your eyes and pretend that she still loves you
The tears will come soon enough so tell yourself a lie
Just turn your back, on all that pain and sorrow
You're too young to face the facts of life

Just walk the floor make believe she's walking with you
Pretend that she said hello, forget she said goodbye
Put on an act, pretend you never lost her
You're too young to face the facts of life

Sit by yourself and pretend that you're not lonely
The truth doesn't matter now so go ahead and lie
Don't want her back, pretend that you don't need her
You're too young to face the facts of life

You're too young to face the facts of life
You're too young to face the facts of life
You're too young to face the facts of life
