

So Many Miles

The Generators

Changing seasons
The train is leaving
The destination is everywhere but here
I'm moving on now
What's to find out
When everything behind me
I've torched down to the ground

Empty highways
And broken skyways
They take us places
But don't leave us anywhere

So divided
I can't revive it
You don't know what you've got until it's really gone
Steel wheels now turning
It's just me and my burden
Going out now
Out on the nothern bound

You can try to face it
But you won't never erase it
And it will follow you
No matter how far you go

So many miles in all the while
You can run until the break of dawn
You turn around there is nothing now
So many miles
So many miles
So many miles
Oh and there you are

You can try to face it
But you won't never erase it
And it will follow you
No matter how far you go

So many miles in all the while
You can run until the break of dawn
You turn around there is nothing now
So many miles
So many miles
So many miles
Oh and there you are
