Gravity

The Handsome Family

There's a blind man who hears angels
He hears them whispering inside potatoes
And from the curling leaves of blooming plants
And in the winding tracks of crawling ants

He stands outside under the sky Listening to starlight drifting by Because gravity is not the only Force at work in this world

Just like gypsy moths and flying bugs Circle around a shining bulb The blind man dreams of drifting away Into the darkness of outer space

And when he walks the city streets
He sprinkles the sidewalks with apple seeds
Because gravity is not the only
Force at work in this world
