

False Alarm

The Head and the Heart

Visions of you dance through my head
Dark heroine of the books I have read
Pages torn out, I made up my own world

Deep in the dream, it's all built to last
You pull the plug, drain me down fast
Pop my balloon, I fell from a great high
And I'm tired of wasting life
Searching out going around
What became such a false alarm

'Cause I'm looking for the truth
Not some tired cheap cliché
False treasure in a shallow pond
Alright

Fireworks blew out the top of your head
Powder and spark drew me to bed
Drift with you there down a dark and frozen stream
I thought I'd found jewel of the Nile
You're just a shiny rock in my pile
So many stones, stuck in my shoes

And I know if there's enough
It could make up a road
That could lead me far from this town

'Cause I'm looking for the truth
Not some tired cheap cliché
False treasure in a shallow pond

And I'm tired of wasting life
Searching out going round
What became such a false alarm
Just a false alarm
Just a false alarm
Just a false alarm
A false alarm
