Oh, Mary, this London's a wonderful sight with people here work ing by day and by night.

They don't sow potatoes nor barley nor wheat but there's gangs of them diggin' for gold in the street.

At least when I asked them that's what I was told so I just too k a hand at this diggin' for gold,

But for all that I found there I might as well be where the Mountains O'Mourne sweeps down to the sea.

I believe that when writing a wish you expressed as to how the fine ladies in London were dressed,

Well, if you'll believe me when asked to a ball, they don't wear no top to their dresses at all.

Oh, I've seen them myself and you could not in truth say that if they were bound for a ball or a bath,

Don't be startin' them fashions, now, Mary McCree, where the Mo untains O'Mourne sweeps down to the sea.

There's beautiful girls here, oh, never you mind, with beautiful shapes nature never designed,

And lovely complexions, all roses and cream but let me remark w ith regard to the same

That if at those roses you venture to sip, the colors might all come away on your lip,

So, I'll wait for the wild rose that's waitin' for me in the place where the dark Mourne sweeps down to the sea.
