

Abracadaver

The Lawrence Arms

Bright and burning blue, stretch your arms out above me
I know that you still love me like you did
Copper brown and orange red, burn the words that I never said
I'm swallowing the pill

If you see me grinning, it's a disguise
If you see me grinning, don't trust my lies
When the ink dries, we'll have another masterpiece
When the drink dies, we'll have another restless sleep again

The smell is so thick that I can taste it
It's stained so bad that I'll never erase it
Stained so bad we'll never erase it

Try, try again and again it falls flat
Fall's rolling in and I can't find my hat
I can't find my hat

If you see me grinning, it's a disguise
If you see me grinning, don't trust my lies
When the ink dries, we'll have another masterpiece
When the drink dies, we'll have another restless sleep again

Magic dream haver, an abracadaver
Use your mind over matter till there's nothing the matter

These columns are calmly calming me down
The white stripe of light from the sky to the ground
It's the biggest most obvious red flag and it's waving away in the wind
And nobody sees the clouds or the trees, only the dust and the fire within
