Player Hater Anthem

The Loved Ones

"I think they're losing more momentum every day they're trying 3% percent too hard, can't you see the look ther e on his face? I think they'll do okay for now and in a year throw in the towel but they're losing their momentum every day" "they won't be doing this much longer without pay and when it all comes crashing down, oh I can't wait to see the day we can say we told 'em so they're just a little bit too old and they can head home, head in hand like a disgrace" do I regret I even wasted the breath it took to sing? do I regret I ever admitted to a little and bled it all out on the page? do we regret they're out there waiting? for someone honest to take the stage? will they want their ten bucks back or leave knowing that this means more than anyone could pay? it's all just as well the ones that can tell know we're here to play