

Sweet-Lovin' Man

The Magnetic Fields

There's an hour of sunshine,
For a million years of rain
But somehow that always seems to be enough,
When love falls from the sky, nobody ever asks why

You just take it or you leave it where it was
But there's just one kind of love
You can spend your life dreaming of
For the love of a sweet-lovin' man

Some have traveled far and wide
Some have given up and died
For the love of a sweet-lovin' man
Some have broken down and cried

Some have turned to dust inside
But I'll stay right here and hide
In the arms of my sweet-lovin' man
Until you've had sweet lovin'

There's no lovin' worth the name
But you can go blind from crying all the time
And who said life was easy
And who said a man was fair

Well I wish you well
But keep your paws off mine
You can't buy one at the mall
But he'll come if you just call
