

It Wouldn't Have Made Any Difference

The Manhattan Transfer

Do you remember the last time I said
If I ever thought of lying I'd rather think of dying instead
And maybe you'll remember

The last time you called me to say we were through
How it took a million tears just to prove they all were for you
But those days are through

'Cause it wouldn't have made any difference
If you loved me, how could you love me
When it wouldn't really make any difference
If you really loved me, you just didn't love me

'Cause I know of hundreds of times I could be
In the most unfaithful arms that you always picture me
Well, maybe you'll remember that

Though I can't always show proof I was true
No one else could change my mind or stop me coming home to you
But those days are through

'Cause it wouldn't have made any difference
If you loved me, how could you love me
When it wouldn't really make any difference
If you really loved me, you just didn't love me

Enough to believe me, enough not to leave me
Ooh, enough not to look for a reason to be unhappy with me
And make me regret ever wanting you

Wouldn't have made any difference
If you loved me, how could you love me
When it wouldn't really make any difference
If you really loved me, you just didn't love me

It wouldn't have made any difference
If you loved me, how could you love me
