

Love Letter

The Mekons

an hour to kill so he picked up a pen a sad smile spread across his face imagined love that moved thorough time and space the mars so red and bare the pen scratched out the words "i need you" and "i'll forgive you everything" 'cause everything's going to be alright you'll see when you come back to me the chest pains came and spread into his back eyes closed he stretched out in the dard exhausted from a hard night's sex and from fighting off another shark i'll betray you with my body force feed you poison dressed as love i'll dig your grave down by the sea
when you come back to me open up doors and rooms appear like magic lovely people walk the floor dressed to kill and built for war oblige me and i'll scorn your every action! offend me and you'll see just how much trouble i can be, my dar link she raised the bottle and put it to her lips the whisky burned and made her start she crushed this letter down into a ball so nothing could disturb her heart