

autumn glowing
as she's walking
through the breezy evening gales holds her coat tight
yellow streetlight
hangs upon trees like a veil leaves bring day's end
to the pavement
broken ruby lines her way

she sings a lie
a lullaby
to calm down everyone
around her
'cause she has date with stars
with stars

passing by a
corner bar where august's kept in marble halls
she keeps on strolling
stars are weaving
shades of silver deadly cold waves of sea sound
from outside town
sighing echoes of her fall

she sings a lie
a lullaby
to calm down everyone
around her
'cause she has date with stars
with stars