

Romans 10:9

The Mountain Goats

Wake up sixty minutes after my head hits the pillow, I can't live like this

And in the shower I am a sailor standing ready, waiting for the shift list

Everything looks burned up, I'm too scared to look around
Don't feel like going on, but come on, make a joyful sound

If you will believe in your heart
And confess with your lips
Surely you will be saved one day

Try to think of ways to fix myself but everything ends in a cul-de-sac

The beast broke from the barn while we were sleeping, face it, face it, he's not coming back

Don't see what the point is in even trying to fight
Look for the bigger picture when I close my eyes real tight

If you will believe in your heart
And confess with your lips
Surely you will be saved one day

Look for the sign of Daniel
Consider the clues
Wait as long as I have to for good news

Wake and rise and face the day and try to stop the day from staring back at me

Busy hours for joyful hearts and later maybe head out to the pharmacy

Won't take the medication but it's good to have around
A kind and loving God won't let my small ship run aground

If you will believe in your heart
And confess with your lips
Surely you will be saved one day
