Song for the Julian Calendar

The Mountain Goats

Sun twinkling on the river this evening I tasted chocolate on my tongue Darkness climbing up the ladders to the sky Rung by agonizing rung

I heard firecrackers popping next door Wondered what it was I'd bargained for When I laid quiet on the floor And you were knocking

Let me be your witness
Let me walk out on the edge
The sun refused to shine on my backyard today
Darkness climbing up the house, coming through the window ledge

I saw the firecrackers bursting on the sidewalk Heard you talking your baby talk Saw the bright lights again and I Felt the shock when you were knocking
