

Untouchable

The Murmurs

No one can take the place of you Nobody in the world touches me like you do
And I know, yes I know, you're untouchable

No one knows me like you do Nobody comprehends the pain I'm going through, except you
But I know you're untouchable
I accept you're untouchable

You never wanted
what I always needed
And I always needed a door
Trapped in a room full of wonderful colors
You left because you needed more
And we knew from the start, we were jumping the gun I never thought that I'd be the one Trapped in a room full of wonderful colors
just me
it's not nearly as bright, I'm afraid of the dark it's all turning black can't you see

No one can hurt me like you do
No one will ever know the love I have for you But they'll know, yes, they'll know you're untouchable and they'll know yes, they'll know you're untouchable

You never wanted what
What I always needed
and I always needed a door

Leave me here
I want to be untouchable
I close the door behind you now I'm untouchable to