

Consider

The Nylons

Consider your love and what you need
I know what it's like to be surrounded by speed
Most of us can't slow down
We move around too fast
It's so sad and it might be a waste
To have to give it all up in haste
I'll be your friend right to the end of time
And we will make it last
Open up your heart, make a new start
Here and now is everything
Considering your love

Consider your love and what that means
Does it come close to your deepest dreams
Don't lay awake at night to fight the falling rain
If the wind could blow it away
Then I'd be happy to go out of my way
To see you again
I would not pretend to know
The meaning of your pain
The rain will always be the only thing you see
Try to teach your heart to sing
Considering your love

I know the world is not gonna end
Still I see a different kind of love
One where we don't pretend

Rain won't have to be everything you see
If you teach your heart to sing
Considering your love
