

Human Family

The Nylons

Are you afraid of what's going on
Right before our very eyes, people losing their lives
It's not a matter of right or wrong
Everyone who's alive has the right to survive
We're all in this together, my friend
Our indifference must end

We're calling out to you, wherever you may be
Everybody take responsibility
This world was made for you and it was made for me
All of us are part of the human family

Can you imagine just how it feels
Knowing each passing day time is ticking away
No time to wait for a miracle
As we hold back the night for a glimmer of light
We need your love and your faith
You can listen before it's too late

We're calling out to you wherever you may be
Everybody take responsibility
This world was made for you and it was made for me
All of us are part of the human family

Stop hiding in the dark
Everybody face and fight the fear
Start reaching with your heart
Show the world that hope is finally here

We're part of one another

Can we do something to ease the pain
Do we know what it's worth to be part of this earth
So many we can't bring back again
And it feels so unfair to the people who care
How many tears must we cry
How many people must die

We're calling out to you wherever you may be
Everybody take responsibility
This world was made for you and made for me
All of us are part of one family

Calling out to you wherever you may be
Everybody take responsibility
This world was made for you, made for me
All of us are part of, all of us are part of
All of us are part of the human family
