

Summer Romance

The Redwalls

And these summer storms roll in like ancient winds
an old flame set a light again.

Oh, how it struck an inadvertent glance then the rain
And I fell in love with my darling.

Oh, that change, came over me
And I find it lovely
And all the sounds, space, and time took a break as we listed promises that lovers make.

But falling that storms outside, the rain is coming
And I fell in love with my darling.

hopeless bounds of discontent
With wild thoughts without regret
The promises that don't get give
To fall in love the monument

Please, don't let me hear you say goodbye
Darling! please, don't let me hear you say goodbye.

So cast out by the storms and the rain and the wind
an old flame set a light again
And so all these things come back to me in waves
And i fell in love with you darling

Time goes on and feelings change
infatuation fades away
The ties that bind begin to fray
Oh oft alone and not decay

Please don't let me hear you say goodbye, darling
Please don't let me hear you say goodbye.

Ooh, my mind goes and if it's real aah those such things yeah...
those such things, mmm.

Please, don't let me hear you say goodbye!
I'm in heaven when you smile.

Don't pretend you didn't try, darling please!
Don't let me hear you say goodbye.
