Rain upon the Impure

The Ruins of Beverast

You who first cast the stone
Are you adorned with wings?
How could you silently suffer
The sight of your dreams' wreckage?

Creature...

Your harvest is poor Your soul bleeds Your eyes won't ever see

When the bread is broken Wounds are nailed into your palms

You who first cast the stone Where is the splendour That once you wore so proudly?

Creature...

Your limbs are weak Your path is short Your breath is putrid

When the wine is offered Disgust is drying up your throat

You who are without sin Who was to block the left hand path When it became the last resort?

Actress...

Your speech is mute Your tunes are sad Your voice will die down awfully

The day heaven laments your failure With noise of rain (lashing down) upon the impure.