

My Time Again

The Rumjacks

My Daddy he were just a boy when he walked outta school,
His Mammy said there'd soon be one more hungry mouth to fill,
He said 'the learnin' and the schoolin' wurnae bad for them tha t could,

Tho' I can read & write my bloody name & sign it where I should

And he said..

'If I had my time again, I know I'd be a learned man,
An artisan in high demand, a Doctor or a Teacher,
As sure as guns are made of iron, I were born a workin man,
I'd live & die right where I stand if I'd my time again'.

He went wide eyed down tae Johnny Brown, he were a big lad for his years,

And there he worked so long if he ever cried there'd be iron or e in his tears,

He'd tumble in of a Friday night a Haddie for yer tea,
And he'd sing to me their dirty songs & diddle me on his knee,
And he'd sing..

'If I had my time again, I know I'd be a rovin' man, I'd rove away to far Japan to court the Emperors daughter..'
With his mates he'd belt the plates on fleets of shining awe,
To carry all the well-to-do to golden foreign shores,
They all coughed themselves to an early grave half filled with bloody rain,

As the people sang 'The Long Black Limousine',
We all sing!..

'If I had my time again, I know I'd be a fightin' man,
In far Malay or Vietnam, tho' I am more a lover..'
