

A Statue of a Girl (May 15th)

The Saddest Landscape

i remember you standing there quiet in the early spring evening you looked even prettier than my memory would allow you stumbled when you walked into the theater(it was all just an effort to make sure i would notice you as if i wasnt watching your every move)send me all of your feet, all of your rain and all of the reasons you cant sleep at night is this how it happens is this how it feels running through city streets late for movie screens and in the darkness i still hear the words fallen from your lips: forget about stars and hearts everything you need is all right here. just know that you are only one breath away from anything you will ever need just hope that it is enough!!!