

Sing Your Song

The Slackers

Wash out my apathetic mouth dear
With the whiskey of your kiss
There's no tapestry of words here
Just spiders webs of hit or miss
If you've insanity for reason
Or of excuses had your fill
I say your name 'cause no one else does
I'll sing this song 'cause no one will

Your mouth it creaks when I open it
It sucked the breath from deep inside
Your voice I fear it's too low for it
It seeks a place where it can hide
I wipe the dust from your open book
Shed a tear for your pride
I say your name 'cause no one else does
I cry the tear that no one cried

How I long for the animals
Clear inhuman simple minds
Left to rot with the carcasses
Of all the lives you've left behind
Did you wonder why the vultures
Sit among us as we dine
I say your name 'cause no one else does
I sing this song like it was mine
I say your name 'cause no one else does

I say your name 'cause no one else does
I sing this song 'cause no one cares
I see the light is softly fading
Upon the mountain of their stares
I hear the calling of a village
And torches lighted for the kill
I say your name 'cause no one else does
I'll sing this song 'cause no one will

I say your name 'cause no one else does
I sing this song 'cause no one will

I say your name 'cause no one else does
I sing this song 'cause no one will
