To Be With You Again

The SteelDrivers

I cannot wait for dawn to break I must be on my way Before I pass this way again Be many a dog, dog days

The sheriff does not know my face He does not know my name But before the sun goes down again He?ll know them just the same

One kiss before I leave you And one more for the wind Every day I hope and pray To be with you again

With the poor man's word and a rich man's gold Who?s chances would you choose? The judge and jury close their eyes And justice don?t come through

I?ll run from what I haven?t done 'Cause the long arm of the law Got a silver spade that?ll dig my grave Before on us all

One kiss before I leave you And one more for the wind Every day I hope and pray To be with you again

Down along the railroad tracks Waitin' in the weeds The first freight train to the leave the yard Will be the one I'm in

I?ll find a place on the boxcar roof Where the wind cuts cold and deep I don?t know need no railroad man To catch me in my sleep

One kiss before I leave you And one more for the wind Every day I hope and pray To be with you again To be with you again
