

The Dreamer

The Tallest Man on Earth

I'm just a dreamer
But I'm hanging on
Though I am nothing big to offer
I watch the birds
How they dive in then gone
It's like nothing in this world's ever still

And I'm just a shadow
Of your thoughts in me
But sun is setting, shadows growing
A long cast figure
Will turn into night
It's like nothing in this world ever sleeps

Oh, sometimes the blues
Is just a passing bird
And why can't that always be
Tossing aside
From your birches crown
Just enough dark to see
How you're the light over me

And by your side, girl
Where the acres grow
Into the strong and stunning meadow
A cowboy stumbling
In the finest field
And nothing good out there won't be old

Oh, sometimes the blues
Is just a passing bird
And why can't that always be
Tossing aside
From your birches crown
Just enough dark to see
How you're the light over me

Sometimes the blues
Is just a passing bird
And why can't that always be
Tossing aside
From your birches crown
Just enough dark to see
How you're the light over me
