In My Hearse

The Tiger Lillies

So now I'm just skin and bone lying in my hearse The pallbearers are ready to put me in the earth The mourners are all standing looking at my grave The adults looking serious the small ones misbehave Some of them are crying some are looking glum Some can't wait to get away and go and have some fun The priest has seen it all before he really is a dear He's buried several hundred yet still he sounds sincere
