just like a flower you need your drink and no one in your way just as the water runs through your veins it makes you go insane but gets rid of all your pain

just like a flower you need your sunlight and no one in your way just as the radiation touch your skin it makes you go insane but gets rid of all your pain

just like a flower you need your drink and no one in your way just as the water runs through your veins it makes you go insane but get rid of all your pain

just like a flower you try my heart and you've never been betrayed i know your phantoms, i know your pain i can make them go away but it'll make me go insane, but get rid of all your pain