Titanic Terrarium

The Tragically Hip

Growin' up in a biosphere
No respect for bad weather
There's still roaches and ants in here
So resourceful and clever

Her great grandfather saw the future Didn't know nothing 'bout panic He certainly probably thought That it was unthinkable

Trace o mint wafting in from the north So we don't fuck with the 401 It's bigger than us or larger than we bargained I guess it's just not done

His great grandfather worked for Goodyear he'd see the blimp on Sundays Wonder what the driver knew About making rubber tires

Terrarium, terrarium

Submarines out there, under the ice Avoiding and courting collision An accident's sometimes the only way To worm our way back to bad decisions

My great grandfather was a welder He helped build the Titanic Certainly didn't think that is was unsinkable

Building up to the larger point With an arrogance not rare or pretty We don't declare the war on idleness When outside it's cold and shitty

We stay inside and try to conjure the fathers Of the injured and faking If there's a glory in miracle It's that they're reversible

Terrarium, oh, terrarium
