

What You Did To Me

The Verve Pipe

Never trust a beautiful day
Everything is all right, bathing in the sunlight
And then the skies are turning gray
Time to recover, that's when you discover

That all around the solid ground was cracked by the sun
It's just begun
Then flooded by the rain
You feel the pain, you feel the pain, you feel the pain

That was no fair fight, I was blinded by the light of love
When you did, what you did, what you did to me
I'll spend my life trying to rise above
What you did, what you did, what you did to me

Memories will tear you apart
Only if you let them, better to forget them
And when you look inside of your heart
Some of them are rotten, none of them forgotten

And where you've been your virgin skin was burned by the sun
You can't outrun
Then pelted by the rain
You feel the pain, you feel the pain, you feel the pain

That was no fair fight, I was blinded by the light of love
When you did, what you did, what you did to me
I spent my life trying to rise above
What you did, what you did, what you did to me

Just can't fight it, blinded by the light of love
When you did, what you did, what you did to me

And everywhere, the rancid air
Your virgin skin beyond repair
The blazing sun, that smoking gun
These are things you can't outrun
And nothing's changed it's in your veins
You bare your soul and feel the pain
You bare your soul and feel the pain

That was no fair fight, I was blinded by the light of love
When you did, what you did, what you did to me
I spent my life trying to rise above
What you did, what you did, what you did to me

Just can't fight it, blinded by the light of love
When you did, what you did, what you did to me
