

Last Goodbye

The Wailin' Jennys

I hear the wrecking ball sure on the path, no thought for the old But the fault lines were there so how much should we care we're broken in two from the day we are born But you'll not hear any more of this said You're singing a song that's been stuck in your head
You say, I'll tell you how we'll both make it through to the end

And then you will see that I love you you'll rest with me all our nights
You say, I know a place where your heart can be safe and you've said your last goodbye

I hear every word that you say taking it in like an old fairy tale Through for better or worse and the promise of verse you make it seem real, like its all here to stay But see how the wind it blows, all the birds scatter and I'm out here alone
You say I know your favourite song and I'll sing you back home

And then you will see that I love you
you'll rest with me all our nights
You say I know a place where your heart can be safe
and you've said your last goodbye

So let it come down let it come

And then you will see that I love you
you'll rest with me all our nights
I know a place where your heart can be safe
and you've said your last goodbye
