Everybody Out of the Water

The Wallflowers

Now on your mark, get set, let's go
You got to move now before she explodes
Look out the window and out below
Back away from the glass, there she blows

The city's been leveled, the hills are in flame
The streets cracked up and when we're pushing up clay
The temperatures dropped, the sky is gray
And it ain't even over comes driving rain

Maybe that you feel
There's something moving around in here
That's blood, that's tears
This ain't the warning

Everybody out of the water
And up on dry land, take what you can
'Cause you won't be here again
Everybody out of the water

Now I'm treading high water to get back to you
Looking for a low spot or something to cling to There's too many bodies there's not enough room
God help me and God help you

They say nobody panic, help is on its way
We're already on it, you got to be brave
If you can fix it now then don't make us wait
Man, they ain't nobody coming back away from the case

That bell you hear
That's hell ringing in your ears
I fear, my dear
This ain't a warning

Everybody out of the water
And up on dry land, take what you can
'Cause you won't be here again
Well, I loved you then like I loved you now
That don't matter anyhow, well, this is the new frontier
Everybody out of the water

Now I'm looking up and the shit keeps coming
Like shooting ducks in a barrel of honey
You've got to learn how to pray but it won't be enough
Admit it now, your information sucks

Side slip, down in, I think of a someplace high up a mountain
Smoke clears the fog lifts little by little we rebuilt again
But till then

Everybody out of the water
And up on dry land, take what you can
'Cause you won't be here again
Now I loved you then like I loved you now
It won't matter anyhow, well, this is the new frontier
Everybody out of the water

Everybody out of the water
Everybody out of the water
