Dalliance

The Wedding Present

You've told him lies now for so long Yet still he's ready to forgive He's got you back and that's all he wants A lot more than I'm left with You don't care now that you're gone But do you know how much I miss you? It's not fair after all you've done That I'm so... I still want to kiss you And throwing presents straight away Because you could never take them home Always scared what he might say But always leaving me alone You don't care, now that you're gone But do you know how much I miss you? It's not fair after all you've done That I'm so... I still want to kiss you You told him what he wants to hear And so you got another chance But I was yours for seven years Is that what you call a dalliance? You don't care, now that you're gone But do you know how much I miss you? It's not fair after all you've done That I'm so... I still want to kiss you
