Figures

The Whitest Boy Alive

There comes a time For everyone To sit down and assess what's there and what is not there Eternally up in the air And it seems that time has come for you

And it figues now I was only the one who needed to appear and cause a turn of eve nts To force a turn of events

It's also fitting somehow That I should be the last to know And I'm blown away When my friend tells me that it's so What did I give you That's harder to answer than what did I take

What did I mean to you?