

Something Weird (Going On In My Head)

The Wildhearts

"Yeah, nice one Dan!"

There's a light in my room so that it's always night or day
I know that being responsible will help me find my way
Well, I'd swim an ocean to be around it
But I've been swimming since the age I found it
The sweet affliction, people are different
Feeling my head is my home (head is my home)
Better than feeling alone

There's something weird, there's something weird
There's something weird going on in my head
There's something weird, there's something weird
There's something weird going on in my head
something weird going on in my head

Take me away from all the silence and the pain
Far from the growing reek of greed and personal gain
Well, I'll find a shelter, I'll be an outlaw
To dry myself off from the bullshit downpour
Don't need a reason, you don't deserve one
Just my amnesia time (amnesia time)
'cos in the back of my mind...

There's something weird, there's something weird
There's something weird going on in my head
There's something weird, there's something weird
There's something weird going on in my head
I never knew I could leave here
I never knew it was so easy
Well I never knew it, I never knew I could fly

Oh, well I'd swim an ocean to be around it
But I've been swimming since the age I found it
The sweet affliction, Of thinking different
Feeling my head is my home (head is my home)
Better than feeling alone

There's something weird, there's something weird
There's something weird going on in my head
There's something weird, there's something weird
There's something weird going on in my head
There's something weird, there's something weird
There's something weird going on in my head
There's something weird, there's something weird
There's something weird going on in my head

Something weird
Something weird
Something weird
Something weird
Something weird
Something weird
