The Crash

The Working Title

Someone came in through the door alone Dropped their bags revealed a shotgun Started shooting everyone in sight Oh my God I'm going to die alone

Feel love gripping you Feel love racing through your body

So we can run through So we can run So we can run through And work on falling in love

While his plane is crashing down below Towards the people in the city In their cars and on their boats he knows They will never know the loss of time and control

There's so much beauty Outside and on my bathroom floor She's covered in blanket Everybody wants to see God So clear and with their own two eyes Oh I feel alone
