

are you drifting, there is nowhere to go life support is down and your systems low are you cruising on your secondary cells waiting for the bell (oh do you really think so) flat line you're illusory mind dreams are for the bold and you're not that kind disappointment has a house on that road best to stay at home (oh do you really think so) you're safe and warm inside your chances pass you by the question fills your mind are you caught in a slipstream are you lost in the fog can you see through the windscreen are you sure it's safe to follow somebody's taillight are you already lost

when you get to the daylight when you recognise the world you walked across are you listening with your head in the sand drown the words you don't want to understand 'til the song stops, is it safe to come out nobody's about (oh do you really think so) too late now there's nowhere to go,

life support is down and your systems low and your fuel light said you'll never get home now you're all alone (oh do you really think so) you're scared to stay inside your chances pass you by

the question fills your mind

penny for the dreams you thought you'd lost penny for the dreams you thought you'd see penny for the price you thought it cost penny for the one you thought you'd be pity for the times you kept it all pity for the wealth you thought you'd get pity for the day your empire falls pity for the day your life got caught

are you caught in a slipstream
are you lost in the fog
can you see through the windscreen
are you sure it's safe to follow somebody's taillight
are you already lost
when you get to the daylight
when you recognise the world you walked across