

i've spread my wings i've cut the strings my puppet days have died i've prayed until i have free will i've shut out all the lies i can't make sense of fate's portents on patterns i've relied i've given in my demon twin lies dying by my side the future is a mystery now the stars have turned to grey my freedom rests on knowing how to think and do and say

'do what thou wilt' the blood was spilt an ego thus caressed accepting none but only one is where my freedom rests presenting now the sacred cow 'you cannot trust free will'

we must invent again ourselves become the sum total of our perceptions do not react as you did yesterday don't you become a slave to your memories
