Blown Away

Thunder

If there's a reason for everything I'm feeling It's a lesson I should've learned before It takes such a long time striving and achieving But it don't take long to hit the floor

'Cause all I'm seeing I can see straight thru And all I'm hearing sounds the same And all I'm feeling is lost inside And blown away

My motivation was never any problem In my heart I knew the way to go But for the first time I can't see my direction It's the one thing I thought I'd always know

'Cause everybody seems to move along While I live thru the same old day In the fading tail lights of another lie I'm blown away

When do I get to touch what I'm reaching out for? What am I reaching out for anyway? When I was young I never saw a complication Only black and white but now it's shades og grey When the clock ain't moving, what's another day? Self-esteem is crumbling and there's no-one else to blame When you're blown away, when you're blown away

I know the reason for everything I'm feeling It's a lesson that I should've learned before It takes such a long time striving and achieving But it don't take long to hit the floor

'Cause all I'm seeing I can see straight thru And all I'm hearing sounds the same And all I'm feeling is lost inside Horizon seems so far away

'Cause everybody seems to move along And I can't keep living thru today In the fading tail lights of another lie I'm blown away
