

Farewell

Thy Majestie

In these days of glory and splendor
Solitude's my only fellow

My regrets are close to me
There's a story I never wrote
When I was young I saw an Angel's eyes
I see them in my mind
How I tried to tell you lies
This grief will never erase
Now is burning inside my veins
It wasn't my right to have your love

I caged my soul
I had to decide
"Feel your warmth or give my heart to the fight"
With sadness I chose
To live behind
An iced wall where feelings are confined

At last cruelty came Through space and time
Devouring places empty like my heart
I've taken my soul
I've set it aside
Leaving love for an attractive lie

Then the sorrow grew in me
Carrying real perceptions
Showing all the lies
I'll always remember

The days we spent together
Rays of light above your hairs
You were mine but I had to play
Human race's favorite game

In these days of glory and splendor

Then the sorrow grew in me
Carrying real perceptions
Showing all the lies
I'll always remember

The days we spent together
Rays of light above your hairs
You were mine but I had to play
Human race's favorite game
In the fight between heart and soul
I was obliged to play a role maybe it was the only way out
To realize the peace in my lands
