

At the end of the world, I suddenly feel alive
There's nothing in the world like a Southern California night
I always hoped that someday, everything would be right...
And now someday has arrived tonight

We're speeding through the city tonight
We'll hit this town, just like a bomb
For this one moment, the world is ours
And still we're waiting for the atomic fire

Black palm trees sway, they whisper to the purple sky
Close your eyes and feel the ghosts of Hollywood gone by
Still the dreamers come, still the dreams are left to die
Behind the lights a necropolis lies