

Let Love Take You Back Again

Tim O'Brien

I can only tell you what I see, two lonely people you and me
Both want out and both want in, neither knows where to begin
You can draw a line there in the dirt, stay on your side you won't get hurt
But if you're not afraid to fall, you can take a chance, maybe win it all

You're at the crossroads once again, afraid to lose, you'll never win
Let love lift you, let love in, let love take you back again

You can count the stars up in the sky, it's a different number every time
I'm never sure about what is true, one truth for me and one truth for you.
I can't make you love me now, I can't teach or show you how
But I'm ready now to take a step, I can lend a hand if you want my help

You're at the crossroads once again, afraid to lose, you'll never win
Let love lift you, let love in, let love take you back again

I see the fear that's in your eyes, but keep your focus on the prize
Drop the armor, drop the shame, leave the anger, leave the blame

You're at the crossroads once again, afraid to lose, you'll never win
Let love lift you, let love in, let love take you back again