I've come to terms with the fact that nothing is what it seems!
What you've been taught is that who you are isn't quite good enough

You know you need to be slightly more than, bigger than, brighter than, smarter than, slimmer than, fatter than, richer than how you are at the moment

It's just some idea that sometime in the future you can be better than how you are right now

But it's 2 precise ideas that you've accumulated and that you've been fed

So if you look happy with who you are

It's actually good news because you're not who you think you are

This life is an illusion

Who you think you are is who you think you are
