

A Lonely Place

Tony Bennett

The world can be a happy place
Of stars and cockle shells
Of summer things like garden swings
Of games and carousels

A hundred different pleasures
The heart can not forget
And yet
And yet

The world is such a lonely place
When you are all alone
Your arms reach out to empty space
For dreams you've never known

And in the dawn
In silence I explore
I see the one I've waited for
Beyond a slowly closing door

Oh please don't go
For this I know
I need you so

The world's a lonely place
That's all until you fall in love
